ere her death in which she tells of her intention of ending her life, have no other note of complaint than that she can not continue life and remain separated from May Tevis. In writing what she knew would be among her last words she spoke kindly of all. Her letters were written as though to explain all that was in her heart and culminated in that one cry, "May will never come back to me and I can not bear to live on without her."

The body was brought to Dodge City by her father, R. M. Wright, who left for Holden as soon as the sad news reached here.

THE STATE SOLDIERS' HOME At Fort Dodge, Kas.

Visitors: Vance Everts, Belleville, Ohio; J. B. Dobyns, Howard, Kas.; E. 8th Kas. Cav.; Mrs. C. Dickerson, Mrs. L. Martin, Dodge City; James Duto, Yates Center, Kas.

J. B. Dobyns is secretary of the board of managers and James Duto is president. Mike Sutton, we suppose, takes George Burton's place as treasurer. Messrs. Duto and Dobyns have been with us some days. Mike could not be with them this time being absent at Hot Springs for health and rest. We never know what the board does until after they are gone, then we begin to find out little by little, but sometimes the facts come in big chunks.

The Bachelors club and the Henpecked Husbands will entertain Thursday, April 20th. Admission 10 cents. Doors open at 7 o'clock p.m. This is expected to be par excellence the finest show of the season. The troupe expects to spare no expense in the get up of this play and it is expected to eclipse anything which has heretofore been brought upon the stage. Do not forget the time, do not forget the place. Fort Dodge, April 20, 1905.—By one of the Husbands.

The 9th was the fortieth anniversary of Lee's surrender. The reporter was at City Point, Grant's base at that time. We reported there April 3rd on our way from prison—Andersonville and Florence—and as the army were in the race after Lee, all loose soldiers were held there until Lee surrendered at Appomattox. Four of us escaped off the cars into the swamps, fell in with the Lowrey Gang near Lumberton, N. C., where I was seized with a savage attack of typhoid pneumonia, left at a widow's home Mrs. Nash. N. C. militia captured me and took me on to Lumberton where they left me for dead. March 9th Sherman's cavalry took me in and I was taken to Goldsboro in ambulance. Then I was sent to New Bern, thence by ship to Fortress Monroe and up to City Point. That night dispatch was sent down that Lee was driven out of Petersburg. I think that was the night of April 2nd. After Lee's surrender we were marched to Appomattox, where we arrived April 16, 1865. We have the events of our escape—moving events—written out years ago but it is too long for one article in a small newspaper. This Lowrey gang we were with had a concealed camp in the swamps. They would not go into the rebel army. After the war they developed into a regular James gang.

FUNERAL WAS HELD SUNDAY

Lucile Wrights sad death was a peculiar case

INFATUATION FOR ANOTHER GIRL

And Grief over their estrangement led her to end her life.

The funeral services of Lucile Wright were held Sunday afternoon from the home of G. M. Hooyer. The body was brought home for burial from Holden, Mo., where she ended her life a few days prior. The particulars of her sad death as learned since last Thursday show that she went from Kansas City to Holden to visit May Tevis, spent the night with her and they went driving together all the next morning. After dinner they again went driving. Lucile was to leave for home on the 3:30 p.m. train. About an hour before train time she told Miss Tevis that she had left her valise at the depot and wanted to go and get a warmer waist out of it. They then drove to the depot, Lucile went in and came out with the waist in her arms. She is supposed to have taken a revolver from the valise and to have concealed it in the waist. They drove back to the Tevis house and when there she said to Miss Tevis, "It has turned so warm I want change my waist, you run up stairs and get my umbrella." When May started, Lucile jumped from the buggy and ran to the barn which was in the rear of the house. Mrs. Tevis and another lady were in the back yard. They heard a shot fired and saw Lucile running towards them. She staggered and fell in Mrs. Tevis' arms. Mrs. Tevis asked, "What is the matter?" Lucile replied, "I am shot. I did it myself for, Oh, I was so unhappy."

The attachment Lucile had for Miss Tevis had become the ruling force of her life. She had tried in vain to get her to live again together as they had for a number of years. There seems to have been no other cause for the suicide. Letters written by Lucile a short time be-

BUSY!

The other evening at a girls club the subject of boys came up among the five girls present, as it so often does when girls get together. It was finally proposed that each girl write down the name of the young man who was rushing her most. When the slips of paper were read the name of the same young man was on every one. The Club adjourned: BUSY? He surely must have been.

But it pays to be busy. We've been busy too—getting our Soda Fountain in working order to serve the best ice cream soda that money can buy. And Fancy drinks? We've been busy the e too, and are serving Malted Milk, Chocolate and Grape Juice as our leaders for this week. Try us, you'll find us always busy

RATH & BAINBRIDGE.

Rev. Morrison preached Sunday the 2nd, Rev. Ridenour preached Sunday the 9th.

They had a fine birthday party at Mr. and Mrs. Hoods April 5th. It was the 12th birthday of Miss Cora Hood. She was born in Fort Dodge, April 5th, 1893, and not many can show a record equal to that. Those attending were the following schoolmates: Ida Smith, Pansy Levick, Opal Wyant, Minnie Barkhurst, Abbie Leard, Naoma Smith, Helen Sponsler, Susie Sponsler, Vera Thomas, Sarah Clark, Lula Clark, Georgia Heatton, Phillis Paulk, Eadie Wagner, Daisy McCaffrey, Lottie Thompson, Katie Grantham, Sophia Willoughby, Sadie Phillips, Martha Musick, Amy Reed, Beesie Lyon. After playing in the house they repaired to the open grounds and played upon the green. But say, the young folks can give the old folks cards and spades and then beat them in a birthday party. And the hugging and kissing is immense.

We had just as well finish up this birthday business before proceeding further. Sarden X. Paulk was 67 years of age April 6th and out of sympathy "we gathered then" as follows: Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Rose. Mr. and Mrs. A. Cumback, Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas and Miss Vera Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Hood and Miss Cora Hood, Mrs. Pearson, Mr. and Mrs. Butler, Mr. and Mrs. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. Dodson, Mrs. Sponsler and daughter, Mrs. Tiffin, Mrs. Huston and Mrs. Cronenberg. The latter was the organist. Sarden is getting a few gray hairs as he passes down the Pacific slope of time. We do not know what the X in his name stands for—never thought to ask. In mathematics the X represents the unknown quantity but in this case it must represent something else—it may be that old Persian or possibly the general who retreated with the ten thousand Greeks. Comrade Paulk drives the headquarters carriage and is therefore a personage of some note, in fact he carries a great many of them. Here is long life to Comrade Paulk, Cc. K. of that bloody regiment of Ohio—the 73rd.

The Nashville American says: The establishment of the canteen at the Soldier's home at Johnson City has filled the town with drunken men.

A total of $107,050 was appropriated by the Indiana legislature for the State soldier's home. The widows home will be built this summer to cost $500,000 including furnishings. Removing and enlarging heating plant $26,000. Grand old Indiana!

Cav.; Cornelius Sparks, E 4th Ill. Cav.; Isaac Davis, F 1st Neb. Cav. We see that our old friend Chesley Dolsberry of the 22nd Ind. died at the home at Leavenworth March 27th.
